Student Veterans of America to Hold National Conference

Washington — Student Veterans of America (SVA) will host its first annual national conference June 11-13, 2008, in Washington, D.C. The conference will bring together student veterans from across the country and provide them with a forum to discuss best practices and common issues facing veterans at the local college level. Student veterans will have an opportunity to interact with veteran service organizations and meet professionals in the world of veterans' advocacy. SVA will also conduct official business such as electing officials for executive, regional, and state positions; ratifying the constitution; and creating a mission for the next academic year.

For further information and conference registration please visit www.studentveterans.org or contact Elizabeth O'Herrin at elizabeth.oherrin@studentveterans.org. For media queries please contact Luke Stalcup at ls2367@columbia.edu.
